Ratepayers Show Lack of Interest in Elections For Councillors

Nomination for Councillors for the Town Council was held on Monday at Secretary Austin's office but as far as the ratepayers were concerned for all the interest that was shown the nominations might as well have been announced in Timbuctoo. Three Councillors were wanted as announced, but no person came forward to nominate candidates nor did any candidates show up for nomination.

The Department of Municipal Affairs will now have to decide as to what procedure shall be followed as the Council cannot carry on in its present form. It will take two or three weeks for this to be done.

School Trustees

Two School Trustees were wanted and the two retiring Trustees, Mr. Norman Clarke and Dr. J. L. Clarke, were again nominated and as there was no opposition both were again elected. It was only by pure chance that these gentlemen were again selected as the same indifference was shown in nominations for Trustees as for Councillors.

California Holds No Attraction for Albertans This Winter

There is no argument this winter in favor of moving to California, the facts are all in favor of Alberta this year. It has been a most extraordinary winter so far and the oldest old-timer does not seem to be able to remember quite such a beautiful season as we have had this year.

With the exception of about two weeks at Christmas time into the New Year there really has been no winter weather, and the fine layer of snow that covered this district has parrotically all disappeared. The days are sunny and warm and the nights just have the right tang to make sleeping comfortable.

The kiddies are mourning for the want of skating which has been very intermittent this season.

Who would not live in Sunny Alberta!

BORN:—At the Didsbury General Hospital, on Sunday, January 27th, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. C. Rinehart, a son.

Ex-President Wilson Passes Away

The death of Ex-President Wilson occurred at his home at Washington on Sunday last. As it was well known Mr. Wilson had been in very poor health since retiring from the Presidency of the United States in 1921 and while he rallied sometimes it was known that he never could again regain his former health. The end came very peacefully the cause of death being given by his physicians as arterial sclerosis.

Mr. Wilson will go down in history as the war-time President of the United States and also no less than the most outstanding figure in the times just after the great war as one who fought the good fight for his fellowman in trying to secure peace on earth and good will to man. He had his faults, he was human, but he also had great ideals and tried his very best to carry them out.

He will be buried at the Bethlehem chapel in Washington although the U. S. government stood ready to make all arrangements to have him entombed in the Memorial amphitheatre at Arlington where the unknown soldier from France lies forever. Mrs. Wilson decided otherwise however. The funeral was held on Wednesday, all government and official activities being suspended and the nation observing the day as a day of mourning for a great man.

Gophers Taking Advantage of Fine Weather

Mr. S. Snyder, of Westcott, is the authority for the report that gophers are coming out now. He saw one or two on his way into town on Tuesday. It certainly looks like a very early spring, but you never can tell in this country.

A New Implement Firm

A new firm of implement agents made its bow to the public last week when Mr. A. C. Fisher and Mr. D. A. Edwards (Dave) formed a partnership and will handle the Massey-Harris line of goods, Rumely threshing outfits, gas, oil, insurance, etc. Both of the young men are well known throughout the district as they have been here a good many years and should make a good business combination. Their many friends will wish them every success in their new venture. Their business location is on wall street, east of the C. P. R. tracks.

Among those who attended the hockey game in Calgary on Monday night were, Messrs. W. G. Llesener, Dr. J. A. Malman, J. A. McKenna, and T. T. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Fisher are spending a week in Banff. They succeeded in rather putting one over on the natives or maybe they were scared of a chivaree.

Mr. J. Templeton, prominent garage man and Imperial Oil agent at Killam, spent a few days in town last week. Some reports state that he is interested in the High School staff.

Messrs. A. Brusso, T. Thompson, E. Freeman and J. Miller (skip) are attending the Red Deer bonspiel, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Reports from the firing line to date are in their favor.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a Frances Willard Memorial meeting at the home of Mrs. J. V. Borscht, at 3 o'clock, on Thursday, February 14th. A special program will be given. A hearty invitation is extended to all ladies to attend. An offering will be taken for the Willard Missionary fund.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith, who live east of town, will be sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Smith from smallpox last week. He went to South Dakota some weeks ago on business and it is thought that he became infected while travelling on the train in the U. S. It is reported that there are two other members of the family down with the disease, one a small baby. Mrs. Smith will have the sympathy of the whole district in her trouble.

Canada In 1924

What is the year 1924 going to mean to Canada?

The answer is: Just exactly what the people of Canada determine it shall mean.

If the Canadian people are fairly well satisfied with present conditions, with the degree of progress recorded from year to year since the war, with the existing rate of taxation, and the prevailing state of affairs in the social, political and business world, then things will continue much as they are and 1924 will be very largely a repetition of 1923.

But if Canadians are not satisfied, and are prepared to lay aside petty prejudices and discard sectional issues in favor of a broad patriotism and sound national policies and unitedly devote their energies to a forward All-Canadian movement, then 1924 will mean much more for this Dominion than any previous year in its history.

Canada's progress during this new year will be dependent, however, on the extent to which Canadians will discard their East and West spectacles and view their country, its problems and needs through Dominion-wide glasses. Because nature has divided Canada at the Great Lakes into two great divisions is no reason why such division should be carried into our political, commercial, fiscal—in a word, into our whole economic and national life.

Canada's slow progress during recent years is the result of the blunder made in regarding the Dominion not as one great entity but as two distinct groups whose interests are not, and can never be, common interests. We have even gone so far as to regard them as antagonistic and opposing interests, with the inevitable outcome that instead of pulling together, East and West have been striving against each other, and surely, albeit slowly, pulling apart. Progress under such conditions is impossible.

The interests of Canada East and West are not distinct and separate, but mutual. One is complement to the other. Either without the other would be crippled and all future growth and progress retarded. If further growth in population, production and wealth in the West ceased, what would be the effect on the industrial life of the East? The question supplies its own answer. Does any sane person believe that the Eastern manufacturer would be satisfied to consider that he had attained the maximum of business in the West? Not for one moment. But unless 1924 brings about a marked improvement in Western conditions, the Eastern manufacturer is not going to secure the increased business he desires; in fact, he can make up his mind that he will get less business.

It is high time the East realized the situation, and gave not only serious thought but sympathetic and active co-operation towards solving Western problems. We call them Western problems, but they are essentially Eastern problems as well, because they are national problems, and upon their early solution depends not only the growth and prosperity of the West, but of all Canada. The Dominion can only prosper as the West prospers and is developed.

The financial and manufacturing East needs the producing and consuming agricultural West, and the agricultural West requires the financial and manufacturing East. Our national railways require the development and prosperity of both, and only through the prosperity of the national railways can rate reductions be brought about which will benefit all.

Unquestionably there are policies that can be carried into immediate effect that will prove of enormous assistance to the West without doing an iota of harm to the East—in fact, the advantages accruing to the West will redound to the benefit of the East. The East must come to a complete realization of this fact, study the West, and, instead of blocking or delaying these policies, enthusiastically support and encourage their adoption.

On the other hand, the West must become more self-reliant. Western people must learn that they themselves can, and must, work together towards the solution of many of their problems. The people of the West have been regarded as self-reliant, energetic and as capable of whole-hearted co-operation. But the fact cannot be disguised that in these latter years Westerners have been too much inclined to lean on others, especially Governments and legislation, for the solving of many of their problems, which, however, can best be solved, through their own efforts, and, as far as permanency is concerned, can be solved in no other way.

Co-operation, not necessarily politically, but in an economic way by the people of the West in handling their own problems, and co-operation between East and West in dealing with national problems, offers the safe, sane and sure method of advancing Canada far along the path of development and prosperity during 1924. That co-operation can, however, only be made effective through mutual understanding, the abandonment of old-time prejudices, suspicions and all sectional jealousies. These must be replaced by a true patriotism and a real national spirit and aspiration which thinks and acts, not for the East alone nor for the West alone, but for Canada.

German Engineer Has Plan for a Rocket Which He Claims Can Reach the Planets

A German engineer, Herr Oberth, is discussing with technicians actual plans for rockets capable of reaching the planets. As motive power Herr Oberth would use either alcohol or hydrogen in a fluid state, to be burned with oxygen. A rocket capable of ascending to the border of the terrestrial field of gravity can be constructed for $5,000, in the opinion of Herr Oberth. He estimates that such a rocket, but capable of carrying two observers, would cost $250,000.

Approximately 365,000 miles of binder twine, sufficient to stretch around the world nearly nineteen times if it was all tied into one string, were required to bind Alberta's 1923 bumper crop. Alberta's farmers used 35,000,000 pounds of binder twine last year, more than for several years.

Newsprint Exports

Expect that Canada Will Soon be Ahead of U.S. in Production

Newsprint production in Canada amounted to 914,820 tons in the nine months ended October 1st, according to a report issued by the Government Bureau of Statistics. This was an increase of 145,447 tons or 18 per cent. compared with the same period last year.

The Dominion, the report points out, is rapidly reducing the lead of the United States in newsprint production. The output of the United States was only 184,397 tons more than Canada in the first nine months of 1923, as against 270,246 tons greater output for the same period of 1922. In September, Canada produced 102,486 tons while the United States mills produced 110,209 tons.

At the present rate of increase in another year, it is believed, Canada will be ahead of the United States in newsprint output. The supply of pulpwood is diminishing in the eastern states, while Canada possesses almost unlimited resources of pulpwood and waterpower to exploit it.

CONTINUE FIGHT FOR THE RETURN OF RESOURCES

Ottawa.—Once more the question of the return of the natural resources to the prairie provinces is brought to the front by the arrival of Premier Greenfield, of Alberta, for a conference with Premier King and members of the government on this matter.

It will be recalled that the last conference between members of the present Federal Government and the premiers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, over a year ago, was unsuccessful, although it was stated at its conclusion that "the door was open for further negotiations."

Premier King's original proposal, made in a letter to the three provincial premiers, was that the prairie provinces relinquish the subsidies which they have received in lieu of lands and receive their resources. The proposal "to ignore the transactions of the past and make a fresh start" was not acceptable, however.

It has been rumored that Premier Greenfield is now ready to consider favorably a proposal that the natural resources of Alberta, as they stand today, be transferred to the province, together with two years' cash subsidy.

Lawry. The revenue for the fiscal year was $2,143,163, as compared with $2,200,326 for the fiscal year 1922, but there was a substantial decrease in charges for operation and maintenance, and for plant replacement.

I thought I would try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I could enjoy a good night's rest as well as anyone.

Want Republic In Greece

Shouts of "Down With the King" Heard in Parliament

Athens.—Amid shouts from deputies and the galleries of "Long live the republic!" "Down with the King!" Greece's revolutionary government was turned over to the newly-elected national assembly by Colonel Plastiras, head of the revolutionary committee.

Colonel Plastiras opened the session with a speech in which he enumerated the achievements of the revolutionary government which took power with the abdication of King Constantine in the fall of 1922.

Premier Gonatas followed with an announcement of the resignation of his government, which held office under the revolutionary regime.

The cabinet withdrew from the session after its resignation. The Republicans and the Liberal Democrats remained in the house and endeavored to form a quorum to elect a speaker. After a heated debate the house adjourned.

The various parties are busily preparing their programmes for the sessions. The Republicans, numbering 162, under the leadership of M. Papanastasiou, propose the overthrow of the Glucksburg dynasty, while the Republican Liberals are equally belligerent.

London.—Sir Auckland Geddes, retiring British ambassador to the United States, has left London for the U.S. for a month of leave, taking before his resignation becomes effective.

Replying to inquiries about his health, Sir Auckland said he felt better than at any time for years, and that it seemed almost absurd to think of resigning his Washington post on account of ill-health, nevertheless, his doctors had insisted that unless he endured another six months rest, all they had achieved for his eyes might be undone.

"Please accept my best wishes for the new year and for all that it may signify of international goodwill in the relations of our countries."

Secretary Hughes replied: "I cordially appreciate your message, and beg you to accept my best wishes for the coming year. It cannot fail to give opportunities of which we will be glad to take advantage for fostering the friendship between the peoples of Canada and the United States."

Winnipeg.—Winnipeg's first 1924 gave firemen an extremely busy night and also provided an expensive and spectacular entertainment for a big crowd. The loss from the conflagration which destroyed the five storey warehouse on William Avenue, of Tees & Perse, Limited, manufacturers' agents, is expected to approach three-quarters of a million dollars, fairly well protected by insurance.

The building was valued at about $500,000, and the remainder of the loss was divided fairly evenly between the Tees & Perse Co., and the John Martin Paper Co.

Rangoon, British India.—There is a persistent rumor that the British Government has sent an ultimatum to Afghanistan regarding its alleged connivance in the recent border outrages and its harboring of the persons participating in the raid. Ottawa.—Word of the death of Hon. L. P. Brodeur, especially so soon after his appointment as lieutenant-governor of Quebec, came as a distinct shock to Mr. Brodeur's many friends at the capital. In the political career which preceded his elevation to the Supreme Court Bench (from which he resigned only a short while ago to become lieutenant-governor of Quebec), Mr. Brodeur came most prominently before the public as author of the bill creating the Canadian navy. During the political campaign which followed, Mr. Brodeur was in the storm centre, particularly in his own province of Quebec.

NO AMBASSADOR FROM CANADA TO BE SENT TO U.S.

Washington.—In view of the fact that the British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, has resigned and Sir Esme Howard had been appointed to succeed him, keen interest is felt in Washington over the question of sending a Canadian minister or high commissioner to this capital. Gossip is going the rounds that Canada, before long, will be represented here by its own minister. It is well known that Sir Auckland was opposed to the proposed change whereby Canada would have its own diplomatic representatives here. A change in policy, which would result in Canada having its own diplomatic representative in Washington, would be welcomed by the U.S. Government. It would make possible more direct and expeditious dealing with Ottawa on the numerous subjects which are bound to arise between two great neighboring countries.

Ottawa.—The present Dominion Government has, from time to time, discussed the subject of a Canadian minister to Washington but, so far as can be ascertained there is no likelihood of an early appointment. Following the practice of several years the Canadian Parliament last year appropriated $80,000 for Canadian representation at Washington and the Department of External Affairs has a representative and a correspondent in the American capital who keeps the Government at Ottawa informed on matters concerning the different departments.

Squadron Visits Capetown

South Africa Had Realization of the Might of the British Navy

Capetown, South Africa.—The visit of the special service squadron, which began here on December 22, ended when the battle cruisers Hood and Repulse and the accompanying cruisers left for Mossel Bay, Cape of Good Hope, and other ports along the coast in continuance of the Empire cruise.

It is estimated that considerably over 100,000 South Africans, British and Dutch, representing all sections of the union, visited the ships during their stay here, and the whole of South Africa today has a realization of what the British navy means, which would have been impossible if the visit had not taken place.

Find Pearls In Oyster

Vancouver.—Thirty-three pearls in one oyster patted was the bewildering find with which Ernest M. Allen, son of the Supreme Court registrar, began his New Year's morning. The restaurant in which he was supping shortly afterwards ran out of oyster patties.

'Mountie', A Husky Veteran of the Trail

VISITORS to the Chateau Frontenac at Quebec and especially those who patronize the Winter Carnival there in February have a treat in store for them—that of driving behind a real northern dog-team, led by one of the greatest huskies "in the business," Mountie, the latest acquisition to the team.

In November it was found necessary to secure a new leader for the Chateau Frontenac huskies. It was decided that none but the very best available would do. Wires and letters were sent broadcast throughout the Canadian sub-Arctic to Edmonton, Le Pas, Fort McMurray, and Peace River; in fact, to every point whence a husky of suitable standard might be secured. It was only after a three weeks' search by many authorities on huskies that Mountie was eventually secured at Le Pas, Manitoba, the price paid greatly exceeding that usually given.

It was a real stroke of luck which secured this splendid animal, for he is a veteran of the northern trails and, more than that, as his name implies, has done practically all his service with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Hailing originally from Lac-du-Brochet, in the far North, he was bought by Sergeant Grennan of that famous force in 1919, when very young. His training was carried out by the Sergeant and so well did he acquit himself later that the Mounted Police wrote of him: "He has never missed a patrol or been a day off duty since we have had him."

So he is a real Policeman and no mere movie hero, co-worker for years with the comrades of such men as Dempster, FitzGerald and other heroic trail-makers of Canada's glorious corps, a comrade grown old in battling through snow and storm on the King's business for the maintenance of the right.

Mountie, as one of the finest huskies ever kept in the books of the Police, is a magnificent-looking fellow, a dark grey giant with shining, slit eyes, pointed ears and muzzle, thick fur and gleaming fangs. There is about him more than a breath of the keen, romance-laden Arctic winds and one is not surprised to learn from the Mounted Police that "he has always been admired wherever he has been, both from appearance and capabilities."

The work at the Chateau Frontenac will be puppy's play to Mountie after the desperate toil he has known in the far North. But he deserves well of the people of Canada and has nobly earned his rest and the comfort he will henceforth enjoy.

The drydock at St. John, New Brunswick, is now an accomplished work. It was opened October 29th.
The largest drydock in North America, it is capable of accommodating the largest ships of the British Navy.

Speaking in London, England, on October 19th, Sir Lomer Gouin,
Canadian Minister of Justice, stated that Canada's exports per capita were three times more than those of the United States and her imports per capita four times more. The British Empire was Canada's second best customer.

"Mother Williams" of Broadway

Of course you have visited New York, and if you have been to New York you have been to Times Square; but while you were there did you notice the neat little old lady who was acting as sales agent for the "Billboard" outside the Putnam Building? If not you are not in the show business because everyone in the show business knows "Mother Williams." Likewise the police, for it is known to all of them that "Mother Williams" is on speaking terms with Commissioner Richard Enright, and more than one "cop" indebted to the old lady—she is seventy-two years old—for her intercession with the commissioner on their behalf.

The candles she burns at the "Church of Mother Divine" for her proteges are innumerable. Many a heartless girl has been stopped by "Mother Williams" and sent on her way with enough money to tide her over until the long-sought-for engagement was secured, and the same is applicable to actors, for on more than one occasion she has been seen to "slip them change." Nor has she cause to regret it, for with her it is always "just a little loan until you sign up." Today she probably knows and is known by more producers and actors than any other woman in the country, for few, if any on Broadway, ever pass without a word of greeting for "Mother Williams" and a "God bless you" from her.

Her kind old Irish heart will respond to every tale of suffering for "Mother Williams" knows. Mary Bridget Ann Williams was born in Toronto seventy-two years ago, the daughter of a prominent real estate man. At the age of eight she lost her mother, after whose decease she accompanied her father on a tour of Europe that included a stay in Ireland and a four year visit to London. Returning to Montreal, Miss Williams later became a well-known and successful teacher of music, and

It is with great pride that she points to several of the present day celebrities who received their fundamental training at her hands.

In 1887 Miss Williams found herself alone in the world. The following year she went to New York where she supported herself by her music until advancing age made it impossible to continue as a teacher. From then on, until she became a sales agent for the "Billboard" and was taken under the wing of its proprietor, she did as best she could, but always smiling, and giving, perhaps, more to the world than she received from it.

Recently she took a little journey under the protection of the Canadian Pacific Railway. For two weeks she visited her old friends in Montreal whence she had travelled with the primary object of caring for her father's grave. From there she went to Toronto where her mother's last resting place was ministered to. A wonderful, cheery old lady. Is it a wonder that they call her "Mother Williams" on Broadway?

Author of "My Canada," and Other Stories
Published by Special Arrangement with the Author

He had touched one point on which I was prepared to speak.

"Don't you think that a great deal of that contact is so superficial that it does more harm than good?" I asked.

"Of course I have missed my friends, and that feeling of being close to the whole world. But, after all, I have done more reading here than I ever did before, real reading, not just newspaper headlines that faded in a day. And I have had more genuine joy out of my Greig and Brahms and Beethoven here than if I had left them on the bottom shelf and gone to hear someone else play, or listened to a gramophone record. I love Mrs. Mowbray and Jean and Mrs. Carsdale and Mrs. Fenwick and Jim and the Severns—and when we are rich we'll have our city friends out for houseparties, and we'll run up to town for the opera season the way people do in books."

Murray did not seem quite satisfied.

"You are such a good pretender," he said, quoting Nicolas, "how am I to know that you are not just trying to please me?"

Then of course I told him that he was a conceited boy—I am afraid that we are not always very sensible—but that as he seemed so sure of his position I might as well admit that while I might have some natural preferences in the choice of an ancestral estate I had no insurmountable objection to living in either Patagonia or Greenland, provided I might choose my company.

"But," I added, seriously, "we are ancestors, and our first duty is to the children. They must be educated and given a chance to make the best of their lives. We can't have the advantages of both city and country so we must try to choose whichever one will be best for us all in the long run, would not it be nice if Canada were like England, where one can live in the country and yet never be really out of touch with the things of the city? But Canada is too big and too young and too thinly settled for that as yet."

"Yes," agreed Murray, "we are still in the pioneer stage, though our sophisticated editors are afraid of admitting it. As to the children's education, that is the real problem. Gagnon was telling me yesterday that next fall he is going to send his youngsters to Spruce Creek to school. They will drive themselves back and forth morning and night—not the best possible system, but what else can he do? There are so few children in the neighborhood that unless new people move in we are not likely to have a school near us for some time."

My heart sank. I would as soon have had Mrs. Carsdale teach Rupert and Nicolas as anyone I knew, but to have them away from me all day long.

"Perhaps we shall manage to have a school of our own by the time the twins are ready for it," I said. "If the Atkinsons sell, and to the right sort of people, we may be able to fill a schoolroom." And later on.

"Later on," Murray interrupted, "if they want to go away to complete their education perhaps you can go with them. That is only a matter of finances, and I have an idea that in a few years you will see a very different Herrington's Hope and a very different Spruce Creek."

"A new air-castle?" I asked.

Murray laughed.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

W. N. U. 1566

"Something like that, I suppose," he admitted. "Conditions are none too good now, I know, but one of these days the world will settle down to work again, and when that happens we'll have the best chance that any people ever had to develop the country sanely and normally."

"Take our own district, for example. Suppose that every quarter section were taken up, and that people were willing to face the prospect of staying in one place long enough to make a real home. From all that I can see there is no better place for mixed farming and if we had some way of marketing our produce in an efficient and economical manner, instead of in the hand-to-mouth way that is forced upon most of us now, we would soon find ourselves able to afford good roads and fine schools and comfortable houses. Just now Dave Wilson is making a good thing out of it, but I'm darned if anyone else is!"

"There's Macleod now. He has been all over the West in the last ten years and he tells me that it is the same everywhere, the people in the cities paying two prices for butter and eggs and meat and vegetables that in many cases are imported from the States, while the farmers either cannot, or will not, take advantage of the markets close at hand."

"Do you remember that book we read about the co-operative dairy farming in Denmark?" I asked. "If we could have something of that sort here it would be fine, wouldn't it?"

"Something like it," Murray agreed, "but not quite the same, for various reasons. In the first place, distances are so great here that one must always keep a watchful eye on the 'overhead' or transportation costs will run away with the profits. And another thing is that we are not so well organized socially as the people of Europe. None of us really want to hand down, from father to son, even a model dairy farm with thoroughbred cows, or a poultry ranch with hot and cold water laid on, and a dating stamp for every hen."

"What we want is to work hard for a few years, make money enough to place our children in the professional class, then sell out to someone who is just beginning and move to the Okanagan or Victoria to end our days. No one 'stays put' except from necessity."

"I honestly believe that one of the best things for this country would be to entail farm lands so that the old home would stay in the family from generation to generation. There'd always be surplus sons and daughters to take up other lines of work, but there'd be the old home for an anchor, something to check this everlasting shifting and changing."

"We do not like it when someone tells us that there are no Canadians, but how often do you find one of us who has the feeling of social and political responsibility that the best type of English landowner has? I'm not advocating a narrow parochial outlook, but what does a man care about the way Winnipeg is being financed if he thinks of moving to Saskatoon the next year, and then perhaps to Edmonton three or four years later?"

"Please," I begged, as Murray paused for breath, "if you talk like that much longer I'll feel small enough to lose myself in a crack!"

And then and there I promised myself that if Murray wished to stay on the farm I would never breathe an objection, not even if I had to teach the children myself, and if Ford's and Deleo plants remained only a pleasant dream. There was nothing left for me but to quote Ruth as I had quoted her before, once on that August day nearly seven years ago and again when the doctor told me that Murray could not safely live in the city.

CHAPTER TWENTY

May passed and June came, a wonderful June of hot days and long cool evenings, of grain growing as if by magic and of "male fowles maken melodye." Writing as I am now in the depth of winter I can feel the heat of those busy days, can see the grain waving in the breeze and the masses of wild roses that edged every field and roadside, can hear the tinkle of cow-bells in the evening, and breathe again the pungent odor of the "smudges" that we lit at milking-time to drive away the mosquitoes.

Since I used to visit Cousin Margaret when I was a child I have never heard a cow-bell without hearing also the swish of foamy milk singing against a tin pail, and smelling again the smoke around which the cows gathered.

Murray says that I have a special memory in my nose!

Our cows were never far from home and a bell was not a necessity, but I bought a deep-toned one for Carrie and each evening as I heard it I could feel myself again the Margaret Ann of long ago. Mother seemed very close to me in those early summer days, perhaps because I was trying to do for my children what she had done for me, perhaps because Murray's wish to stay on the farm had unsettled me and made me feel the need of her wisdom and sympathy.

So far as we ourselves were concerned the early part of the summer was uneventful. But we seemed to have brought with us to Herrington's Hope a peculiar facility for becoming entangled in our neighbors' affairs and I used to say to Murray that I could sympathize with The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe. Had Murray and I been of the gossiping kind we could have made a great deal of trouble, but we were too busy and too much taken up with our own concerns for anything of that sort. We merely welcomed people as they came, listened to what they had to say, and then kept our own counsel.

After the roads were dry Mr. Macleod came often to see us, sometimes alone on his bicycle, sometimes with Mrs. Carsdale in Mr. Wilson's Ford, and sometimes he stopped at Mrs. Mowbray's and coaxed Jean to join him. He and Murray had a great deal in common and for that reason, if for no other, I was always glad to see him. However, I liked him for himself, too though it was sometimes difficult to keep relations from becoming strained when he and Jim Cameron happened to visit us at the same time.

Mr. Macleod was not the sort to wear his heart on his sleeve, but it was not long until I was satisfied that if he were heading towards matrimony—and I was not at all sure that he was—Phyllis Carsdale and not Jean Mowbray was the cause. Jean, I suspect, thought so too, for she and Mr. Macleod were the best of friends in that impersonal way that means so much. Jim and Mrs. Mowbray, however, thought otherwise. And what Mrs. Carsdale thought no one knew. At times we lived in a veritable Comedy of Errors.

I used to feel sorry for Jean, and I could not blame her for enjoying the restful company of Mr. Macleod when Jim was so unreasonable. He, poor lad, was too young and too impulsive to hide his feelings, while at the same time he did not consider himself free to "speak up like a man," to use his own phrase, while he was in so unsatisfactory a condition financially. The result was that while he could not keep away from Jean, nor look at anyone else if she were present, she had nothing definite to go on. And, fond of him though she undoubtedly was, I could see that she was far from happy. If it so happened that they met at our house when we had no other guests they were like two children, unquestioningly content with each other's company and apparently asking nothing further. But if Mr. Macleod came in Jim would first efface himself in the most conspicuous manner and then when Jean, girl-like, endeavored to show Mr. Macleod that he was not altogether unpopular, he would positively glower. Perhaps if I had been older the affair would have seemed only funny, but as it was I could not help but feel sorry for the children.

Jean did not talk, but Jim did. And so did Mrs. Mowbray. And to judge by what each of them confided to me Jean must have had a cheerful time between them.

"Jim is a nice boy," Mrs. Mowbray would say, "but he is only a boy, and I tell Jean that she is just wasting her time on him."

"It's little that he'll ever have to offer any woman, and more than that—for I'd not have a daughter of mine marry for money—I mistrust that red head of his. He'll be off and on many a time before he settles. But Jean is not like that, since she was a bit of a child she has been set in her ways—maybe you'd not think it when she is so quiet on the outside—and if once she sets her mind on Jim Cameron it is little her Mother or anyone else could do to change it."

I murmured something non-committal as sympathetically as I could, and Mrs. Mowbray continued.

"It isn't that I have anything in particular against the lad himself," she explained, "there aren't two nicer young fellows in the countryside than him and Bob. But I've always count-

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

"LITTLE FOXES," By E. A. Heary, D.D.

Interesting Stories For Young Folks

Published By Permission Thomas Allen, Publisher

"I CAN'T BE BOTHERED!"

Did you ever hear any girl or boy say that?

"Sonny, go and do that little job, will you?" "Oh, I can't be bothered."

"Johnny, your sister Mary is having a hard time with her home work. Go and see if you can help her." "Oh, I can't be bothered!"

A load of firewood was dumped at the back gate and Billy, who was lying kicking up his heels on the porch in the sun, was asked to go and pile some of it in the cellar. "Oh, I can't be bothered." Wait till Dad comes home, he'll do it!"

The next door neighbour had a sick baby and Nellie was asked to go to the drug store for something. Now, Nellie really loved babies and she was a good little kiddie usually; but she was busy on some ribbons she was fixing for herself—so busy she forgot to shut the garden gate and that fox came in and bit one of the flowers off her soul, and she said, "Oh, don't bother me!"

My girls and boys, you let that fox loose in your garden, and he'll make an awful mess of it! He'll chew up the loveliest thing and leave a wreck! If he gets abroad in the home or the church or the city, or society he'll ruin things without a doubt.

Because:

1. If everybody said that nothing ever would be done to help anybody, this poor old world would be left so that none of us would want to live in it.

Of course, I know there is a lot of "bother" that we should not bother with—the "bother" that your mother means when she says, "Stop bothering the baby!"—the "bother" that means teasing, and vexing and annoying, and making yourself a nuisance.

But think where you would have been if your mother and father had never bothered over you.

Think of where the world would have been if all men and women had refused to be bothered about its history. It would have had no heroes, no authors, and no leaders, and what we call history would have been perfect mess!

It is because savages do not bother that we have the dark places where the missionary goes and bothers his soul to help; and if he did not, there would be no progress; and if he never had gone, you and I would still be savages!

Whenever you are tempted to say, "Don't bother me!"—just remember and be glad that it was bothering about things gave you home and friends and schools and all that makes your life worth while!

2. There is another queer thing about bothering.

Pageant Of Empire

Will Be Held at Wembley in Connection With Empire Exhibition

Arising from a suggestion made by the Prince of Wales that a pageant of the Empire should be held at Wembley in connection with the British Empire Exhibition this year, steps are now being taken to organize such a pageant. For this purpose a special meeting of representatives of the Dominions was held at the War Office in London, when a preliminary discussion took place as to the form the pageant should take.

It is understood that special features suggested comprise a representation of the following: Early explorers; the glories of the Elizabethan period; the exploits of Robert Blake, English parliamentarian and admiral, 1599-1657; development of transport; history of India; early settlement in Canada and Australia; missionary enterprise; abolition of slavery; history of South Africa, and the development of sport. Another feature will be a demonstration of rough riding.

The organizers of the Empire pageant will tour the Dominions in a short time, and will also visit the Sudan, with a view to obtaining characteristic exhibitions from each.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood Supply is Enriched

The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion, and who find the stomach unable to perform its usual function, is a tonic to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach shows that it is too weak to perform the work of digesting the food taken. In this condition some people foolishly resort to purgatives, but these only further aggravate the trouble.

New strength is given weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because these pills enrich and purify the blood supply. This is the natural process of giving strength and tone to the stomach, and it accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follows the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The appetite revives, food can be taken without discomfort and the burden and pains of indigestion are dispelled. Mr. William Johnson, a prominent business man of Lequille, N.S., bears testimony to the value of these pills in cases of this kind. He says: "I was attacked with indigestion accompanied by severe cramps in the stomach. I was prescribed for by the family doctor, but got very little benefit. Then I tried some of the advertised remedies but with no better result. Indeed my condition was growing worse. Then I read of the case of a man who praised Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whose condition was similar to my own, and I decided to try this medicine. The result, I think, was amazing as the use of six boxes restored me to my former good health. I can therefore warmly commend the use of this medicine for stomach troubles."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Women's Ailments
Caused by NeglectProper Treatment Will Quickly
Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is, they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer, and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly respond to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented, and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood purifier, the finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c per box, five for $1.00 postpaid, from The Catarrhzone Co., Montreal.

Sea Mystery

Lifeboat Carried Crew of Dead Men
Off English Coast

Plunging through stormy winter seas off the southern coast of England, the steamship Innisholm sighted a lifeboat ahead, whipped and tossed by breaking waves.

Through their binoculars the officers of the Innisholm studied the tiny craft. Rolling on her wet thwarts were bodies of six men, dead.

Suddenly a great wave overturned the lifeboat. Only two bodies remained in the craft when the Innisholm reached the spot.

The dead men were well clothed, but had suffered terribly from exposure. There was no food, fresh water, nor oars in the boat.

Barely decipherable ship's papers, found in the pocket of one of the dead men, indicated that the lifeboat was from the British ship Roca. Beyond this there is no clue of the strange mystery of the sea.

"It's for the bird to sit on," was the startling reply.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 13

The Long Sojourn in Egypt

GOLDEN TEXT.—Jehovah will keep thee from all evil; He will keep thy soul. Psalm 121:7.

Lesson.—Genesis, Chapters 37 to 50 inclusive. Devotional Reading.—Psalm 124.

The Text Explained and Illumined

1. Joseph Presents His Brothers to Pharaoh, verses 1 and 2. In Gen. 45:17-19 we are told of the royal order calling for the coming of Joseph's family into Egypt, and now Joseph announces to Pharaoh that the order has been executed; his father and brothers together with their flocks and herds and all they possessed have arrived in Goshen. Joseph presented five of his brothers to Pharaoh; possibly he chose five because that was a favorite number of the Egyptians, but very likely the rest were occupied in looking after the flocks and herds.

2. The Conversation Between Pharaoh and Joseph's Brothers, verses 3 and 4. Pharaoh inquired as to their occupation, and they replied as Joseph had instructed them (Gen. 46:33-34), that they were shepherds; they were in no way ashamed of their occupation, although to the Egyptians it was a despised calling. They had come because of the famine in their own land, they told Pharaoh, and they asked only to be allowed to sojourn in Goshen, not to gain there a permanent residence. Little did they dream how long their descendants would tarry in Egypt!

3. Pharaoh's Grant to Joseph's Kindred, verses 5 and 6. Pharaoh turned to Joseph, his prime minister, and with much graciousness directed him to cause his people to settle in the best of the land, and further asked that Joseph take the most efficient ones into his own royal service, to superintend the care of his cattle. Every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians, Joseph had told his brothers. This fact providentially allowed them to live by themselves, and prevented them from intermarrying with the Egyptians and thus becoming lost as a people.

4. Jacob Is Presented to Pharaoh, verses 7-10. We have come to one of the noble scenes in the Old Testament. Dr. Rogers describes it:

"Imagine the Pharaoh seated on his throne (its legs and back enameled in gold and blue), his shoulders covered with a Tyrian mantle, his wrists and ankles ornamented with gold and precious stones, his head surmounted by the double crown of upper and lower Egypt. Before him is Joseph in attire only less magnificent than his royal master, and, presented by him, his aged father in peasant garb, with a robe of camel's hair about his waist. Yet through the simplicity of his appearance shines the dignity of the man, who had lived long, borne great sorrows, seen angels in dream-visions at night in stony places, and wrestled with an Unknown Presence by the loud waters of the Jabbok. He is not overcome by the king's presence or his adornments, the pomp and majesty of his court. He is not awed into silence waiting, as the custom was, for the king to speak first. Nay, he 'blessed Pharaoh,' that is, he offered him the salutation which he would give courteously to any other mortal."
